

Dressed Up

There's no denying it: little girls love to dress up

Whether you're looking for a special gift or a just a way to keep your daughter out of your jewellery box, Odile & Odette is sure to please. We spoke to founder HALLIE GOLDSCHMIDT to learn more about the brand.

Tell us a bit about your products.

We stock dainty and delicate fine jewellery pieces that are sure to become a treasured keepsake. Our simple yet timeless designs feature whimsical themes in sterling silver with enamel inlay or coating. Each set includes a pendant and matching bracelet, and each comes in a beautiful gift box with satin ribbon to keep it in. Along with monthly promotions and competitions, we also offer complimentary wrapping and delivery.

What was your inspiration?

We were inspired by a sweet childhood memory and a six-year-old daughter's love of all things pretty. We found there was a need here for beautiful, well-made, yet affordable jewellery for girls.

Who is behind Odile & Odette?

Odile and Odette is truly a family-owned and operated business with a current presence in Hong Kong and the US. It has always been a desire to start my own company and, in 2014, with my daughter in school all day, I found I had both the time and inspiration. She helps out by modelling the jewellery and my husband uses his photography hobby to take the photos. Our products are imported and handmade by a small, family-run business. We're looking forward to extending our range of products and designs later this year.
